Another Supreme Court Nominee, But Different Politics

The retirement of Justice Anthony Kennedy last month means that, for the third straight year, the politics of confirming a Supreme Court Justice will embroil the Senate. In recent years, Kennedy has been the court's pivotal swing justice for many cases, which means that whoever replaces him will likely shift the court's ideology to the right.

In 2016, Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell (R-Ky.) refused to hold a vote on Merrick Garland, then-President Barack Obama's nominee to replace Justice Antonin Scalia. Instead, McConnell insisted that the next elected president fill the vacancy on the court.

McConnell's strategy paid off in 2017 when President Donald Trump nominated Neil Gorsuch to the post. However, McConnell was forced to employ the "nuclear option," a move that eliminated the filibuster for U.S. Supreme Court confirmations, after Senate Democrats filibustered Gorsuch's confirmation vote. The nominee for Kennedy's seat on the court, which Trump is expected to announce at 9 p.m.(ET) tonight, will only need a simple majority to become the newest Supreme Court justice. However, 2018, like 2016, is an election year, where anything is possible.

The Four Potential Nominees

The president has narrowed his potential nominees to a list of four, all federal appellate judges:

- Brett Kavanaugh
- Thomas Hardiman
- Raymond Kethledge
- Amy Coney Barrett

Senate Math: Counting to 50

For this nominee, Republicans will have a narrower margin of error than they did for Neil Gorsuch. For one, after Democrat Doug Jones' special election win in Alabama in 2017, the Republican Senate majority slimmed from 52-48 to 51-49. Second, Arizona Republican Senator John McCain, who is home battling brain cancer, has not been to the Capitol since December. Assuming he will not be able to vote, the Republican majority slims down even further to 50-49.

However, it is an election year and five Senate Democrats are up for election in states Trump easily won in 2016: Joe Donnelly (Ind.), Claire McCaskill (Mo.), Jon Tester (Mont.), Heidi Heitkamp (N.D.), and Joe Manchin (W.Va.). And even though Jones (D-Ala.) is not up for election until 2020, he represents one of the most conservative states in the union so expect conservative groups to pressure him to vote for whomever Trump nominates.

Roe v. Wade—Depending on who the president nominates, abortion politics could re-emerge as a prominent campaign year issue, especially if Trump decides to nominate one of the more socially conservative judges, particularly Amy Barrett. On July 1, Senator Susan Collins, the moderate Republican Senator from Maine whose vote could be crucial for confirmation, told CNN's Jake Tapper that "I would not support a nominee who demonstrated hostility to Roe v. Wade, because that would mean to me that their judicial philosophy did not include a respect for established decisions, established law."

Reading the Tea Leaves—Trump has kept his cards close to his chest on who he plans to nominate this evening. While the president has not ruled any of the candidates out, White House sources indicate that the greatest focus has been on Kavanaugh and Hardiman.

McConnell, who wants the path to confirmation to be as easy as possible, told the president last week that Kethledge and Hardiman presented the fewest obvious obstacles for confirmation.

Hardiman, who was the runner-up to Gorsuch for the president's first Supreme Court nomination appears that he could be the front-runner, but we won't find out until tonight.

Remote Sales Tax: Next Steps for States After Wayfair

On June 21, the SCOTUS ruled in South Dakota v. Wayfair that state can require businesses without a physical presence in the state to collect and remit sales taxes on in-state transactions. While a tremendous victory for states and Main Street USA, states have a lot of work ahead to ensure that their newfound authority is implemented correctly and fairly. Efficient, easy, and friendly tax administration is important for successful and lasting implementation of this long overdue collection authority.

In late June, NCSL's Task Force on State and Local Taxation hosted the first meeting of state policymakers since the Wayfair decision. The task force members, state tax administrators, national tax policy experts, and the private sector discuss the ruling and the next steps for states. This three-part session was recorded on Facebook Live. View the session.

The task force also adopted a document of "Principles of State Implementation After South Dakota v. Wayfair," which can help guide states as they proceed in implementing remote sales tax collection.

DYK? Johnny Appleseed was a real man, but his apples weren't meant to be eaten.

Beginning in 1792, the Ohio Company of Associates made a deal with potential settlers of the West: anyone willing to form a permanent homestead on the frontier would be granted 100 acres of land if they planted 50 apple trees and 20 peach trees in three years. Given the difficulty of planting orchards, John Chapman "Johnny Appleseed" advanced ahead of the settlers, cultivated orchards and then sold them when the settlers arrived. Given that apple cider provided those on the frontier with a safe, stable source of drink, most of the apples from the trees planted by Chapman ultimately became cider.

The Future of Gaming and Sports Betting

In May, the Supreme Court dealt another decisive victory for states when they ruled that the Professional and Amateur Sports Protection Act was unconstitutional and violated the 10th Amendment. Now, states may legalize and regulate sports betting activity if they so choose. Tax, revenue and spending, law enforcement, and gaming laws will all be affected. NCSL's task force on state and local taxation held a session at its recent meeting to examine gaming trends, and to discuss the future of state tax laws as they relate to the future of sports betting. A Facebook Live recording can be found here.

Farm Bill to go to Conference

Before Congress' July 4 recess, the Senate easily passed its Farm Bill 86-11 clearing the way for a conference committee to reconcile differences with the House's version that passed a week earlier. The goal is to achieve a compromise agreement before the August recess. The House and Senate bills largely differ on a slew of safety net programs, including food stamps and farm subsidies, which will make negotiations rather tricky. The main debate will be over House Agriculture Chairman Mike Conaway's (R-Texas) proposal to impose stricter work requirements for 5 million to 7 million recipients of the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program, which caused all House Democrats to oppose the bill.

The conference committee will also consider the inclusion of the Protect Interstate Commerce Act of 2018, a provision opposed by NCSL that passed in the House version of the Farm Bill. Sponsored by Representative Steve King (R-Iowa), the provision, if enacted, would pre-empt numerous state and local agricultural laws in every state.

It is likely the final bill will resemble the Senate bill after McConnell recently stated that, "The House version of the farm bill had no Democratic support and you can't pass a farm bill through the Senate with no Democratic support, so we'll have to resolve the work issue in a way that is satisfactory to Democrats in order to pass a farm bill out of the Congress and get it to the president for his signature."

Both nutrition and farm programs expire at the end of September, which means that Congress will have to pass an extension if a compromise bill is not reached.

U.S. Department of Education Approves Oklahoma's ESSA State Plan

On July 2, the Department of Education (ED) announced the approval of Oklahoma's consolidated state plan under the Every Student Succeeds Act (ESSA). Secretary Betsy DeVos said, "I am pleased to approve Oklahoma's plan, which complies with the requirements of the law." Hallmark points of the plan include a comprehensive needs assessment to identify on-site coaching and guidance for academic success and a school report card to reward schools that emphasize the importance of well-rounded education.

To date, only three states await ESSA plan approval: California, Utah and Florida. These states have received feedback from ED and are currently working on revisions.

DOJ Accepting Applications for School Safety Grants

The Department of Justice is currently accepting applications for this year's Community Oriented Policing Service (COPS) School Violence Prevention Program, or SVPP. Authorized by the STOP School Violence Act, the grant program offers as much as $25 million to state and local governments for school safety measures. SVPP covers up to 75 percent of the cost for:

- Coordination with law enforcement.
- Training for local law enforcement officers for student violence prevention.
- Deterrent measures such as metal detectors, locks, and lighting.
- Technology for accelerated notification to local law enforcement during an emergency. Other key measure that the COPS Office determines may provide a significant improvement in security.

School districts or nonprofit organizations may receive funding via contract and sub-awards made through grant recipients. The deadline to apply is July 30.

DYK? In the late 1920s, Cleo McVicker, an employee of the Cincinnati-based Kutol Products soap company, negotiated a contract with Kroger grocery stores to manufacture ready-made wallpaper cleaner that could remove coal residue from wallpaper. The product kept the company afloat and successful for another 20 years. It wasn't until 1955, when wallpaper cleaner sales began to plummet, that a relative of the McVickers', a school teacher, first used the product as a play object. The rest, as they say, is history.

Ohio Kidney Patient, Healthcare Groups Unite Against Reckless Dialysis Amendment

(COLUMBUS) – Ohioans Against the Reckless Dialysis Amendment, a broad coalition of leading kidney care organizations, nurses, physicians and patient advocates, today announced its opposition to a proposed Constitutional Amendment that threatens to reduce access to Ohio’s 326 out-patient dialysis clinics for the 18,000 Ohioans suffering from kidney failure.

Dialysis providers are among the most regulated healthcare provider groups in the country. All out-patient clinics are licensed by the Ohio Department of Health, certified by the federal Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS), and highly regulated under current state and federal laws and regulations. Current laws and regulations address, among other things, patient safety; environmental cleanliness; infection prevention and control; emergency preparedness; staff training and continuing education; and water system and equipment maintenance. Clinics must also submit to unannounced quality assessments and inspections by the Ohio Department of Health.

“The proposed amendment was written by a California-based special interest group with no experience in dialysis care and – without any evidence of a problem – would recklessly lock dangerous, arbitrary rules into the Ohio Constitution, threatening access to high-quality care for thousands of Ohioans,” said Diane Wish, co-founder and president of the Ohio Renal Association \(ORA\). “What’s worse, the amendment calls for rebates that will end up in the pockets of insurance companies, not patients.”

Wish, a registered nurse with more than 40 years of experience in providing dialysis treatment, is joined by other kidney care experts and physicians in opposition to the proposed amendment initiated by the California-based SEIU-UHW West.

"I've seen first-hand the devastating health consequences my dialysis patients face without proper access to care," said Dr. Henry Wehrum, a nephrologist (kidney specialist) with nearly 30 years of experience in the field, who also serves on the board of the Ohio Osteopathic Association (OOA). "The Ohio Constitution is simply not the place for complicated healthcare policy. And because it's written as a Constitutional Amendment, when things go wrong it can only be changed by another Constitutional Amendment – that's not a risk I'm willing to take on behalf of my patients."

Michael Needham, president and CEO of the Kidney Foundation of Ohio (KFO) added, "the Kidney Foundation of Ohio opposes the amendment because it will harm patients, not help them. The Amendment threatens to reduce the number of centers available to Ohioans, which would be especially harmful to vulnerable patients." The Kidney Foundation of Ohio is a patient advocacy group that has been providing a broad-based program of direct assistance to those with kidney disease since 1950.

To date, the organizations opposing the amendment include:

- Academy of Medicine of Cleveland and Northern Ohio
- Chronic Disease Coalition
- Diabetes Dayton
- Dialysis Patient Citizens
- Global Healthy Living Foundation
- Kidney Care Council
- Kidney Care Partners
- Kidney Foundation of Ohio
- National Renal Administrators Association
- Nonprofit Kidney Care Alliance
- Ohio Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics
- Ohio Osteopathic Association
- Ohio Renal Association
- Ohio Sickle Cell and Health Association
- Ohio State Medical Association
- Renal Physicians Association
- Renal Support Network

Based on campaign finance filings, the California-based SEIU is believed to have hired hundreds of paid petition circulators, many from out-of-state, to gather signatures from Ohio voters. On Wednesday, July 4, the group submitted signatures to the Ohio Secretary of State in an attempt to qualify the issue for the November 6 Ohio statewide ballot. The petitions and signatures are now under review by elections officials.

“The SEIU has a long history of abusing the ballot issue process to advance its own political agenda,” said coalition spokesperson Gene Pierce. “That its amendment would actually harm Ohio dialysis patients comes as no surprise to those familiar with the SEIU’s strong-arm tactics.”

Among the proposed Constitutional mandates are provisions directing the Ohio Department of Health to establish arbitrary revenue limits for Ohio clinics and require rebates to private health insurance companies should revenues exceed those arbitrary limits. The amendment excludes Medicare, Medicaid and other government payers — which cover nearly 90 percent of dialysis patients in Ohio — from receiving rebates, leaving only private health insurance companies able to receive them. The amendment does not require insurance companies to pass on any savings to patients.

Coalition members are concerned that arbitrary revenue limits will force some dialysis providers to consolidate operations or close locations, reducing access to critical dialysis care — particularly for patients in rural, urban, and underserved areas.

The non-partisan coalition is planning a statewide campaign to educate Ohio voters on the ballot issue’s dangerous consequences, should the issue be placed on the ballot.

The estimated 18,000 Ohioans suffering from end stage renal disease (ESRD) typically receive life-preserving dialysis treatments in a clinic three times a week, with each visit taking three to four hours. According to national research, missing even one dialysis treatment increases a patient’s risk of death by 30 per cent. Find more information on ESRD in Ohio here.
